Kate Winslet's tousled hair needs a light hold, like Nicky Clarke's Finishing Spray, £5.49

Scarlett Johansson works the movie star look with a glamorous lipstick like Lancôme Colour Fever, £15.50

IF YOU PRESUMED THAT THE WORLD'S MOST GLAMOROUS WOMEN STARTED PREPPING FOR A BIG EVENT JUST LIKE THE REST OF US – with a nice bath and a blow-dry a couple of hours beforehand, think again. At Oscar time particularly, beauty treatments begin days if not weeks in advance. LA facialist Ole Henriksen starts making regular trips to the houses of celebrity clients (including Charlize Theron, Renée Zellweger and Jessica Alba) two months before the ceremony – that way he has enough time to help skin through two whole 'cycles' – which means problems can be perfected in the first month then the glow brought back in the second. A-listers, like the rest of us, subscribe to the view that the more expensive something is the better it makes us feel. And at Oscar time, prices go off the scale. Natura Bissé's much-publicised "Million Dollar" facial involves massaging A-list skins with 18-carat ▶

Benefit 10, a highlighter and bronzer, £22.50, is perfect for creating Beyoncé's glow
